Continuation of 11. does NOT place the application in condition for allowance because: As per rejection of claim 20 under 35 U.S.C.101, Applicant argues in substance in pages 9 - 10 that the rejection is not based on reading the claim in its entirety and reading the claim as a whole, the limitation "computer readable medium", a person of ordinary skill in the art would understand the limitation to be a computer readable tangible storage medium that stored instructions, moreover, applicant amend the claimed to read "computer readable storage medium".

In response to Applicant argument, Examiner respectively respond that the claimed as recited by applicant is statutory under 35 U.S.C.101, however, on paragraph [0119] - para.[0121] of the specification, applicant defines the claimed computer recording medium as not limited to statutory subject matter such as SIM card, SD card. Since the embodiment encompass by computer recording medium are left openended. One of ordinary skill in the art may construe the embodiments to encompass waves, signal, etc. In such embodiments, the program is unable to act as a computer component and have its functionality realized, because the full scope of the claim as properly read in light of the diclosure encompass non-statutory subject matter, the claim as a whole is non-statutory under 35 U.S.C.101.

As per claim 1, Applicant argues in susbstance in pages 10 - 13 that neither Rubin nor Shteyn specifically disclose "append that ID to a portal address assigned to the portable memory and then writes the portal address with the appended ID into the portable terminal memory".

In response to Applicant's argument, Examiner respectively respond that Rubin fully disclose append that ID to a portal address assigned to the portable memory and then writes the portal address with the appended ID into portable terminal memory (col.8 lines 42 -61 and col.9 lines 24 - 40).

Examiner interprets "portal key uniquely identify device (e.g. portal device serial number)" is "portable terminal ID", "embedded portal key in portal device" is "appending portable terminal ID to the portal address" as claimed.

As per claim 20, Applicant argues in substance in pages 13 - 14 that neither Rubin nor Shteyn nor Poulsen specifically disclose read an ID from portable terminal, appending the ID to a portal address, and storing the address with appended ID in the portable terminal. In response to Applicant argument, Examiner respectively respond that Rubin fully disclose read an ID from portable terminal, appending the ID to a portal address, and storing the address with appended ID in the portable terminal (col.8 lines 42 -61 and col.9 lines 24 - 40). Examiner interprets "embedded portal key in portal device" is "appending ID to a portal address" and "portal device storing portal key and associated information" is "storing that address with appended ID in the portable terminal" as claimed.

As per claim 5, Applicant argues in substance in pages 14 - 15 that Rubin dose not disclose wherein that data reading/writing device is arranged to store the corresponding uer-specific portal site address data appended to the ID read from the portable terminal in the memory medium of the portable terminal.

In response to Applicant's argument, Examiner respectively respond that Rubin fully disclose wherein the data reading/writing device is arranged to store the corresponding user-specific portal site address data appended to the ID read from the portable terminal in the memory medium of the portable terminal (col.5 lines 55 - 67, col.6 lines 24 - 53, and col.8 lines 42 - 61).

Examiner interprets "storing portal and associated information in memory is" storing user-specific portal site address data appended to the ID read from portable terminal" as claimed.

As per claim 14, Applicant argues in substance in pages 14 - 15 that Rubing does not disclose storing in the memory medium of the portable terminal of the portal site address data having the received ID.

In response to Applicant's argument, Examiner respectively respond that Rubin fully disclose storing in the memory medium of the portable terminal of the portal site address data having the received ID (col.3 lines 23 - 63, col.4 lines 48 - 67, and col.8 lines 42 - 61).

Examiner interprets "storing information associated with portal key on portal device" is "storing portal site address data in the memory of a portable terminal" as claimed.

Thus, Examiner maintains the rejections.
